PgMP® Examination Information

Evaluation 1—Panel Review

The panel review process begins once the audit is completed (if your application is selected) and the certification payment is received.

A panel of volunteer PgMP-certified program managers will assess your professional experience based on your responses to the Program Management Experience Summaries on the PgMP application.

This review panel consists of individuals from around the world who, through an application process, have been identified as subject matter experts in program management and have been trained and calibrated to assess your answers to the Program Management Experience Summaries. To protect against any potential review bias, PMI will ensure that your identity will not be known to the panel reviewers.

The review will verify that you, under very limited supervision, have been responsible for the coordinated management of multiple, related component projects and directed toward a common organizational objective.

If you fail the panel review, a certification associate will contact you to discuss your status. It is not possible to continue on to the examination without passing this review.
